Changed arrangements for servicing of Applications for Certificate for Affected Place have been put in place, given the COVID-19 response. Here are the key points:

1. For places not entered on the Tasmanian Heritage Register, a certificate to that effect will be issued, and there will be no significant change.
2. For places entered on the Tasmanian Heritage Register, a copy of the entry will be provided with the certificate. Should the applicant require information on past works decisions of the Tasmanian Heritage Council, please email us a separate request and we will provide this information at a later date.
3. Depending on the volume of applications and resources available, processing and issuing of certificates may take up to 10 days.
4. In line with the Tasmanian Government's COVID-19 stimulus measures, there will be no increase in the application fee for certificates in 2020-21.

Applications for Certificates for Affected Place can be made under Section 86 of the Historic Cultural Heritage Act 1995. These certificates provide information on whether or not a place is affected by:

- (a) any action of the Minister or the Heritage Council under the Historic Cultural Heritage Act 1995; or
- (b) any decision or determination under this Act.
